We continue to believe that measurable critical levels of performance should be established before beginning the tests, demonstrations, and evaluations. DOD partially agreed with our draft Because of a misinterpretation, recommendation to evaluate the feasibility and costs of performing sufficient tests and evaluations during the limited procurement to preclude concluded DOD the need to duplicate them during a larger procurement. that we wanted them to expand the testing program. However, our intent was to preclude the need to repeat tests to support a larger procurement. Therefore, we modified the recommendation to prevent any misunderstanding. agreed to provide evidence that the deployment of would be DOD EFOG-M cost-effective before requesting appropriations to support and operate the EFOG-M DOD equipment beyond the extended user evaluation period. stated RFPI ACTD that the results of the would include an analysis of the cost-effectiveness of limited fielding with the inventory procured for the ACTD as well as for an expanded deployment and that any decision to procure additional units would include full consideration of funding and personnel levels required to operate and support the expanded deployment. response and our comments are included in appendix III.
